MARJ AL-HAMAM, Jordan -Maya Shrnuel, who was seriously injured when a Jordanian soldier went on a shooting spree last March, killing seven of her schoolmates, yesterday described her ordeal to a military court.

We got off the bus and stood close to the guide, who began to explain ... and talked for nearly a minute; until we heard the shots," Shmuel, 14, told the court in a soft voice.

She and five other witnesses were brought under heavy security to testify in the trial of Pvt. Ahmed Dagamsa, who shot the girls at Naharayim on March 13.

After their testimony, they were hosted at a meal by King Hussein. Shmuel, speaking only a few meters from where a composed Daqamsa was sitting in a chair behind the black bars of his cage, said a bullet which he fired hit ber in the stomach.

Another group of schoolgirls who went on the school trip will testify at the next hearing on Sunday. Dequarts has not denied shooting the girls, but says he acted impul-sively after being provoked during Moslem prayers. He faces a death sentence if found guilty on four charges, including premeditated murder.

Israel-PA talks to resume here on Thursday

Jazz bounce back

By JAY BUSHINSKY

The Egyptian-chaired dialogue between Israeli and Palestinian representatives aimed at renewing the stalled bilateral peace talks is expected to continue here on Thursday, under the intensive scrutiny of American and European Union diplomats.

Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu was given a detailed account of Monday's three-bour opening session by members of the Israeli team.

Among the decisions taken by the negotiators was that there be a total ban on public pronouncements regarding the topics under discussion. Egypt's mediator, presidential adviser Osama el-Baz, was designated the sole spokesman for all the participants.

Palestinian sources believe the Palestinian delegation has been instructed to refrain from any statements or actions that might impair the Egyptian initiative. They credited Israel with having catapulted Egyp1 into the status of honest broker, a move that ended Cairo's tendency to urge the Palestinian Authority to adopt a hard-line stance in dealing with Israel.

However, chief PA negotiator Saeb Erekat told Israel TV's Arabic-language service that the Israeli delegation did not present any new proposals or ideas and that no progress was made. US interest in this emergency phase of the peace process was ighlighted by Ambassador Martin Indyk's arrival at the Foreign Ministry barely 12 hours after the initial session to receive detailed briefing. Foreign Minister David Levy brought him up to date on all the recent diplomatic contacts and approaches. Despite Indyk's request for Levy to assess the Cairo meeting, sources believe the new Egyptian mediation effort is being closely coordinated with officials in Washington, with special Mideast envoy Dennis Ross playing the central role.

Senior lsraeli officials acknowledged the paucity of detail that emerged from Sunday's meeting, attributing it to Egypt's preference that there be no publicity.

They are concerned at the possibility that one side or the other may lose face," said David Bar-Illan, director of communications in the Prime Minister's Office,

He cited the cliff-hanger that preceded the talks' opening, when ihe PA's Marwan Kanafani announced purported concessions by Israel according to which all settlement construction would stop and the Har Homa housing project would be wound down. Israel's demand for a "substantive retraction" was met, but only after the four-man delegation that was about to leave for Cairo was ordered to stay put. "These are actually talks about talks," Bar-Illan said, suggesting that expectations should be "very reasonable" to "low."

Testimony by Dr. Yehuda Hiss, a pathologist at the National Forensic Institute at Abu Kabir, contradicted Dagamsa's claims.

Hiss told the court that six of the girls died of gunshot wounds to the back and one because of "a deadly injury in the left shoulder." The shots were fired from a distance of about 2 meters, said Hiss, who examined the bodies when they were flown back to Israel after the shooting.

Ze'ev Kramer, 45, the tour guide, recalled how he at first thought Daqamsa, who was preparing his M-16 rifle to shoot, was only removing an ammunition clip, until it dawned on him that he "was shooting at us. "At first, when I saw him handling his ammunition clip. I thought he wanted to remove it. I wanted to continue talking to the girls but then, after four or five seconds, I heard a volley of automatic fire," said Kramer.

The court also heard the testimony of Yaffa Shukrun, 40, a Hebrew teacher who was shot in the left arm. When we rushed to hide under the slope, a girl screamed, saying she was in great pain, and as she got closer I saw her head down, at the same time my left shoulder was hit by a bullet and I lost consciousness," she said.

Judge Brigadier Mamoun Khasawneh turned down a request by defense lawyer Hussein Majjali to bar the Israeli witnesses on the grounds that Jews would not tell the much because they are the "eternal enemies" of Arabs.

Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyabu pours concrete yesterday during a cornerstone-laying ceremony for a new architecture school at Ariel's College of Judea and Samaria. In his address Netanyahu made no mention of any plans to halt the construction of 6,500 homes for Jews at Har Homa in Jerusalem.

PM: Building on Har Homa, in settlements will continue

By SARAH HONIG

"Construction in Jerusalem, including on Har Homa, as well as construction in the settlements of Judea, Samaria, and Gaza continues and will continue," Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu told Likud-

Gesher-Tsomet MKs last oight. He again categorically rejected "reports that any sort of a promise has been made to halt construction at Har Homa or in the settlements. "We are now in the midst of a negotiating process in which we first must make sure that the Palestinian side lives up to its commitments to combat terror and to cease murdering land dealers and other innocent people," he said.

The negotiating session in Cairo, he said, "did not result in any understandings about renewing the process, but we are meeting again on Thursday. For my part, I still would like to see the Palestinian side live up to its bargain and then I would like to enter a speeded up negotiation for the final status agreement." His guidelines for that agreement, Netanyahu said, will "take into account the reality and conditions already created on ground, but we will strive to maintain in Israeli hands the most vital national assets that would enable us to achieve peace with security and peace without giving up what is dearest to this nation. Heading the list is Jerusalem and sites which are cardinal to our existence as a nation and as a Jewish fying the Jordan River as our eastern boundary and enhancing Israel's direct control over the Jordan Valley and the mountain ranges which control it. This is most important.

"It should be self-evident that we should have absolute responsibility and exclusive sovereignty in greater Jerusalem. I don't see Jewish settlements existing in isolation, but as blocs. There are security zones and border areas which we must keep in our hands.

"This is not the full list of our conditions and demands. But the basic difference between us and others is that we oppose the establishment of a Palestinian state in the areas of the Palestinian Authority, because such a state means an Arab army which would threaten Israel's very existence.

Flight dispute with US resolved

By HILLEL KUTTLER and AP

WASHINGTON - Transport Minister Yitzhak Levy bas decided to allow Tower Air to fly from New York to Tel Aviv via Athens, thereby averting an aviation skirmish that threatened El Al's American subsidiary.

The last-minute decision apparently avoids US Department of Transportation sanctions that would have grounded North American Airlines connections carrying El Al passengers from to York Baltimore/Washington, Dallas, New and Orlando. The announcement came in a statement Levy's office issued last night in which he decided to request.

This follows talks conducted in recent days between Minister Levy and the US Embassy in Israel, with a desire to pave the way to continued negotiations on flight arrangements between Israel and the US," the statement said, adding that Israel's Civil Aviation Authority would raise with the DOT Israel's request to add San Francisco to its list of destinations.

DOT officials could not be reached yesterday for confirmation.

An Israeli Embassy official here said the negotiations were handled almost entirely in Israel, often through Ambassador Martin Indyk. The official said, "I don't think it was smart of [Israel] to refuse Athens" service for Tower. The US's grounding of North American Airlines was to have begun tomorrow. The company flies the New York-Baltimore/Washington

"respond positively" to Tower's route Wednesdays, although oot this week due to Shavuot. It is to begin summer service to Orlando next week and has not yet decided when service to Dallas will commence, El Al's US director Mickey Gat said.

Last week, Israel's Civil Aviation Authority turned down Tower Air's request to launch a Tel Aviv-Athens-New York route during the summer tourist season, reportedly citing a late application. US transportation officials in turn barred El Al from expanding its stops to Orlando, and Baltimore/ Dallas. Washington.

Shahak: Syrians talking about surprise attack

Chief of General Staff Lt.-Gen. Amnon Lipkin-Shahak was quoted as saying yesterday that the atmosphere in Syria has deteriorated recently, and the Syrians are now talking about preparadons for a surprise attack on Israel. "Some of the prepa-radons that were done among the Syrian forces in the last year make it a little hit easier to launch such an attack," Shahak told a New York audience. His comment was broadcast on Israel Radio. The radio quoted Shahak as saying that although there has been no change on the ground in Syria, Israel is closely monitoring the situation. MKs ask High Court to halt Har Homa building

The government has failed to meet a court order regarding the Har Homa construction, three MKs said in a petition to the High Court of Justice yesterday. MKs Avraham Poraz (Shinui). Amnon Ruhinstein (Meretz), and Haim Oron (Meretz) asked the court to fix a date to hear their request to issue an interim injunction preventing further work at the site.

At a hearing on an earlier petitiou on March 19, the court had ordered the government, at the request of the three MKs, to respond within 60 days as to whether it would build for Arab residents in Jerusalem. But, the petitioners said yesterday, the time had passed without an answer. It seems likely that the construction for Jews at Har Homa will continue while there will be mere declarations hut no building for Arabs, they added. They therefore requested the court to order a halt to construction at Har Homa until "significant" construction work is underway for Arabs. Batsheva Tsu

Bar-On rulings expected Sunday

By BATSHEVA TSUR

The High Court of Justice is expected to hand down its rulings on the peotions submitted following the Bar-On Affair on Sunday, a court source said yesterday.

The petitions call for indictments against Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu and Justice Minister Tzahi Haneghi, as well as for Haneghi's removal from office. Meanwhile the court yesterday dismissed a petition against the possible reappointment of Ya'acov Ne'eman as justice minister. The petidon was presected by journalist Yoav Yitzhak, who claimed that Ne'eman is unfit for the post because of his alleged involvement io a number of scandals.

Ne'eman resigned as Justice Minister wheo the attorney-general decided to indict him for obstruction of justice, but has since been acquitted. The court was told that Netanyahu has still not decided whether to return Ne'eman to the ministry, as he had promised, since he is waiting to hear Ne'eman's position. Yitzhak presented new evidence which he said oed Ne'eman to illegally raising $1.6 million for Netanyahu's election campaign. But Justice Shlomo Levine said that Yitzhak had not followed procedure hefore turning to the court.

Three thousand Falash Mura were not allowed on the Israeli planes during Operation Solomon. and remained in a compound in Addis Abba administered by the Joint Distribution Committee and the North American Conference the Falash Mura here said in the beginning that there were 25,000 to 28,000, but now these people are saying the numbers are much less," said Kaplan. "Initially no distinction was made between those in the compound in Addis Ababa and those elsewhere; now the larger community has been dropped, and the emphasis is on those in the compound. Views concerning the Falash Mura vary widely. Some, including a number of rabbis, politicians, and activists in the community, view them as similar to Marranos - Jews who were forced to convert to Christianity during the Inquisition in order to survive. Others, also including some rabbis, politicians, and activists in the community, look at them disparagingly as Jews who left the fold as a matter of convenience, and for whom Israel has no moral responsibility.

Various rabbinical and governmental committees have been dispatched to Ethiopia in the hope that they would define the issues, but no final decision has been made.

In 1993 a committee of the Chief Rabbinate said the Falash

Court recommends Dayan testify

By BATSHEVA TSUR

K,

The High Court of Justice yesterday instructed the attorney-geueral and the Judge Advocate-General to consider whether OC Central Command Uzi Dayan should give evidence in court with regard to a petition from officers in an IDF undercover unit. The four petitioned the court a month ago in the bope of cancelling an indictment against them on charges of negligent homicide. The charges relate to an October 1994 incident in which an Israeli citizen, Arye Houri, was shot near Hebron. The incident took place when the unit was attempting to capture suspects travelling on back roads at night in cars with Israeli license plates. The force opened fire at the vehicle after it failed to stop at a roadblock and the driver lost control and later died of his injuries. The peulooners, represented by the Movement for Quality Government in Israel, asked the court yesterday to add a long list of respondents, most of them senior IDF officers who supported their claim that the incident had taken place during an operation.

"It is becoming the mode to bring testimony from senior army officers in complicated cases of negligence," said prosecutor Shai Nitzan, who opposes this.

Earlier, Justice Mishael Cheshin had taken the prosecution to task, saying that the attorney-general should have delved more thoroughly into the case and considered overturning the decision of the Judge Advocate-General, who opposed cancelling the indict-

"Those who wanted to bring all Tsaban said yesterday, "but rather some under the Law of Return and others under the Law of Entry for humanitarian reasons." The latest decision, he said, seems to be a more "wholesale decision" to bring those in the Addis Ababa camp to Israel." What will happen to the other Falash Mura, however, still remains anyone's guess.

New satlink for Channel 2

The Second Television and Radio Authority has awarded the Hallal company the contract to provide the satellite uplink for Channel 2 broadcasts via the Amos satellite. Channel 2 chief engineer Ehud Ben-Dor explained that the signals are sent out to the ground transmitting stations via Amos. There is also a fiber-optic link with some of the larger stations, such as the one at Eitanim. Until Sunday, Bezeq provided the service via the Intelsat. Helen Kaye

AMICUS CURIA ON THE KNESSET BILL (5757) CONCERNING THE VALIDITY OF CONVERSIONS BY CLERICS OF THE CONSERVATIVE, REFORM, RECONSTRUCTIONIST ANTI JUDAIC RELIGIONS

Prepared by: The Bet Din Elyon of America for the Supreme Court of Israel

The Torah was given on one mountain by one God to one people not four Torah's on four mountains to four peoples. God, as our scriptural text sources clearly indicate abbors pluralism." There shall be one law for the critezen and for the stranger who dwells among you" (Ex12:49). "There shall be one law and one ordinance for you and the stranger who dwells among you" (Num. 15;16) "How long will you continue to be pluralistic?: (Kings 1, 18:21); "Don't meddle with pluralism" cooperated with anti semiles in spreading the two toost toos

Accordingly, the Reform Movement, as delineated by Scholent and his academic colleagues was a two-faced. Externally, "klapel lasts" it advocated a Jewish escape from Judaism chinsing under the protension of academic scholarship that the Torah was basel's gift to God written by humans and therefore not binding. However, they claimed loyalty to the Noahidic Laws and posted modernity, science and rational philosophy. Secretly, "klapel parin", the inner circle were mystic Satanists of Jacob Franks (d. 1791) "red Labhala" yearning for the dawn of as antinomian new age where its secret ambitious could become public policy. In the early 70's the movement agitated for abortion, the capital crime of marder under the Noahidic Laws. At the end of the 70's it fought for the notion of paralineal docent i.e. whereby the Jewish identity of a child could be determined contrary to Jewish Law (see Lavin and Hoenig, Jewish Identity (Feldheim (1970) by the fatter having prohibited accurit extra and lesting the to be availed the statement adopted a resolution accepting homosexual and lestions with a non-lewish woman Finally in the summer of 1990 in time for the 200th anniversary of Jacob Frank's demise; the Reform Movement adopted a resolution accepting homosexual and lestion clergy. Homosexuality is a capital crime in Judaism (Lev 20:13) an abomination! A capital crime under the Noahidic Laws. Reform clerics however begins to preach and then practice in 1996, an even worse abomination homosexual marriage. The Tahund (Chulin 92) asts if the homosexual abomination is so rampant among the Gentiles, why does God not descry them? Answer - they don't have the chutzpuh to sanctify their pervensions through marriage. Our Bet Dia bas taken notice of, and brought to public attention (Rafio commercials in New England (April 1997) the fact that the original 13 colonies of the United States advocated capital publishment for homosexuality as for example the following Statute:

" If any man lyeth with mankinde as he lyeth with a wooman, both of them have committed abomination, they both shall surely be put to death". (The Liberties of the Ma Colonie in New England, 1641) sd, the Hittite Code of this country and that of Hammurahi all inveighed against homoscoundity.

Our public campaign to Gentiles concerning the Noshidic Laws is rooted in Maimonides (Rambam) statement based on Pintei D'R Elizzer that we have no missionaries to convert Gentiles to Induism. However, we are commanded to: "Coerce all the inhabitants of the Earth to accept the Noshidic Laws." (Hill M'lachim & 10) The Rambam's circuiton for homosexuality being a Nonhidic capital crime is Hil. M'lachim (9:5-6).

Our Bet Dio publicized a " Declaration on Homosexual Abominations and Lesbinsism" (Jerusaleta Post May 27, 1994) wherein we declared in summary the following. Homosexuality is a cardinal crime in Judnism. Our sages tuled long ago, that if a person is asked privately under threat of death to engage in homosexual relations with any man, death is prefictable (Sambedin 74a, Yad, Hil. Yesotei HaTbrah Chapter 5). This holds for idolatry, murder and any of the capital sexual crimes such as adultery and incest. However, in private one is prohibited to sacrifice one's life for parochial aritzvot, eg. enting non-kosher foods or violating Shabbat a capital offence. Applying the equality of cardinal crimes across the board our Bet Din ruled: "Advocacy of more are chagory as idolatores advocacy. The advocate, be the your own bruther, son of your moting-convoluted, spared nor concelled (v.10). This is one of four cases where the Torah demands the courts publicize the case. "And all israel shall hear and fear, and shall cease to perform any such evil as this is your midst" (v.12). We relied especially on the Ramban:
"But these there been who renonces (the Torah) are lower than the pagans. As or the Pagans, we do not dispose of them; for they, i.e. the rightcoust ones have a share in the hereafter but these are to be killed and they do not have a share in the hereafter" (Hil. Eydatt 11:10).
"A Noshide... if he knew that she was his friend"s with but did know she was prohibited to him, but rather be thought that this thing (adultery) was permitted to him... be is killed and it shall not be construed for them as a mistake because it was obligatory for him to learn and he did not learn". (Hil. M'lachim 10:1)

What applies to adultery also applies to homosexual relations. The Rambam's position in Hil. Evdut has been codified (S.A. Choshen HaMishpat 34:22) by Rubbi Yosef Caro (1488 - 1575)

What appears an analysis of analysis of interferences interferences in the contains a present of a second as follows: "The Informent and the Apikonsim (herefice) and the apostates are lower than the Pagans." The Morasha L'Hanchil Edition of Choshen Haldistpat (5754); substitutes Gentiles for pagans and presents another variant text following that statement: "And the Canaanites are lower than the Morasha L'Hanchil Edition of Choshen Haldistpat (5754); substitutes Gentiles for pagans and presents another variant text following that statement: "And the Canaanites are lower than the Morasha L'Hanchil Edition of Choshen Haldistpat (5754); substitutes Gentiles for pagans and presents another variant text following that statement: "And the Canaanites are lower than them." Now Rabbi Caro in his Kesef Mishna Commentary on Hil. Eydet, maintains that the original text of the Rambum relies on the Talmudic Text (Avoda Zara 26) which only applies to those that are apoststes out of spite to idolatry. However, be certainly agrees that the idolary source is to be construed broadly. This view has been expressed by many authorities and commentaries e.g. Ibn Ezra and it has been noted that the term avoda zara which literally means strange worship is utilized instead of avodat cililin idol worship; because worship and practises which are strange to the observant Jew are in effect idolatry. As for the Camanite text, it conjures up the pervensions of these heathens in the Toral: "According to the deeds of the land of Egypt... you shall not do and according to the deeds of the land of Canaan" (Lev. 18:13)The Sifra states, the Egyptimus performed homosexual and lestian marriages, and the Torah states explicitly that: "all these abountantions have been done by the inhabitants" (v.27) referring to the Canaanites inhabitants of Ancient level. But even pagan peoples such as Hittines had punishments for homosexual lifer

If the inhabitants of Sodom were exterminated by God for their homosexuality, then it is no wonder that the Sanhedsin in Israel upon being presented evidence of a gang raped dead woman, offered as a consolation prize for a homosexual rape (Judges 19); ordered the war to destroy the tribe of Benjamin which allowed these abominations, resulting in the depth of 25,100 Benjaminites (Judges 20:35).

The Reconstructionists advocte homosexuality and so called same sex manages. As for the Conservatives, consider the following JTA news item which appeared around June 4, 1992 in the Angio-Jewish press: "The Rabbis of the Conservative movement have voted to allow their colleagues to work at gay and lesbian congregations" A week later Debra Nusshauen Cohen of the JTA wrote an in depth news release on reactions of others. Among the statements quoted was the following: "The new Conservative position represents a capitulation to immorality, it institutionalizes and legitamizes reprogrant moral standards...,which is reprogrant and ugly in the eyes of the load " (Mabbi Norther Science TUACA)."

Lord." (Rabbi Pinchas Stolper UOJCA).

Lord." (Rabbi Finches Stolper UOICA).
Chrying this statement to its ultimate conclusion it is obvious to anyone with a clear and logical mind, that any Conservative cleatic intespective of his own personal conduct becomes calcable, for invariantly he is a focal guide for his constituents who rely on his judgement. Indeed, even prior to the Conservative movement crossing this rul line of conduct which a righteous Gentile would abhor, Rabbi Ahoon Soloveichik tuled (Hapardes, Marach Shevan 5747) regarding them:
"It is clear that if someone is part of the evil chain (Sanbedrin 26) even if he is a complete believer in all the principles of faith and observes the attravot and is a great scholar_he is unified or a Conservative Rabbi_him a Conservative tion of the Rabbinical Conneil of America:

convention of the Rabbinical Council of America: "I would still advise every __lew to fongo_group prayer even on Rosh HaShama and Yom Kippur, rather than enter a synagogue with mized pews, _ any Rabbi or scholar who attempts to sanction the desectated synagogue, ipso facts casts a doubt on his own moult right to function as a bacher or spiritual leader in the traditional sense of the word". Rabbi Norman Lamu (President, Yeshiya University) in a comprehensive study on mixed pew services claims they are "of a specifically pagan root" (Pradition I (1959) p.161-2). If one were to re-examine the Rambam in Hill Eydet (11:10), and interpret strictly in accordance with the Tahmadic origin attributed by the Kesef Mishma as dealing only with wilful idolatry then extrapolation of Rabbis Lamar and Solowitchic cited views, leave no doubt that the "Rabbi" of the mixed pew congregation is a kind of pagan high priest who is still liable whether his actions are de jeure or de facto. Indeed the First Chief Rabbi of the State of Israel, Yitzhak Herzog declared, "their temples follows a kind of Christianity without a cross" (Rabbi David B. Holfander, Jewish Press (10) 26, 1996). Remember, however that a neshumad - one who apostavizes to Christianity while being a traitor, nevertheless upbolds the Nonhine Laws. Accoundingly, the heretical movements classing to be part of Jadaism are worse rejecting civilized conduct for barbarism. Indeed they are not Judaism at all. Each one today can be considered a pagan cut, not Jewish, who have entaneed innocent Jews into their word-lewish cut. Ladeet a reform cleric cleases (Ibid. July S , 1996 p.69): "It is time to be true to ourselves and our members. We in the Rosto the store publicity that we are a different religion."

MKs begin legislation process against Generali

By DAVID HARRIS

insurance company Tf Assicurazioni Generali does not commit itself to pay out on policies of Holocaust victims within the next two weeks, legislation will be introduced to prevent government and public bodies insuring with its Israeli subsidiary, Migdal Insurance. This was decided during a joint meeting yesterday of the Knesset Insurance and Jewish Property subcommittees.

"The legislation process will start immediately," said Jewish Property subcommittee chairman Avraham Herschson (Likud).

Migdal consistently has refused to agree to pay families of Holocaust victims, whether they hold the relevant documentation or not. The company so far has failed to hold itself to any of its written or verbal commitments, according to Insurance Supervisor Doron Shorer and Knesset Finance Committee chairman Avraham Ravitz (United Torah Judaism).

Sborer told the meeting he had received promises from Italianbased Generali on three issues: the establishment of a telephone hot line for claimants; the creation of a fund for families, which was to have been established in April; and the granting of aid to help third-generation family members. Ravitz, meanwhile, said the company has informed him it will respond to his negotiations with it over the creation of a fund by the end of this week. Ravitz recommended the company establish a fund to the value of $10 million, the firm's counteroffer amounted to several hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Ansbacher, who is representing the families here. In some 20 percent of these instances documentation exists. The total payable on these policies amounts to an estimated $10m., said Anshacher, who maintains there are many similar cases abroad.

"The company has become entrenched in its views while others have opened hot lines and are prepared to compensate the Jewish people," said Insurance subcommittee chairman Michael Kleiner (Gesher).

Knesset speaker Dan Tichon pointed out that companies such as UBS, which has no assets in Israel, are addressing the issue, under pressure from world Jewry. Herschson also promised to begin an investigation into Generali's wartime activities. While not directly accusing Generali, he said some companies bave refused to pay Holocaust victims, but are paying out to SS soldiers.

Wheo the subject of a government boycott was discussed, Shorer pointed out that under the existing law it is forbidden for state bodies to take part in such an actioo unless the company is at serious financial risk. At that point, the MKs unanimously decided to press ahead with introducing legislation preventing government and public organizations from insuring with companies that refuse to pay out on such policies.

While no one from Generali attended the meeting, the compaoy's public relations company issued a statement which argued the Generali's assets in Czechoslovakia and other countries in eastern Europe were seized. by the communist regimes and the resultaot negotiations mean the firm is not liable to pay out on policies.

ike) (1801 Il should be pointed out that late Reform, the Conservative indoventient also had its trons in Satohtanissi, indeed, even unor so because at Doasts an underputed founder, Zecharta Frenkel (1801 (1801) A Reform "rabby" who walked out of a reform convention of his colleagues in 1845, to form a movement to conserve Judaism - e.g. the issue of Hebrew in prayer, Scholem and others have documented Frenkel's Frankist lineage born into the Sabbatian Frankist Weble family of Prague (MII pp. 167, 357) "bastards to the tenth generation". Furthermore, Professor Scholm is a locture at Hebrew College (Boston, Nov 30, 1975) presented evidence that Solomon Schechter's mentor Adolph Jellinek was a Frankist, Jellinek and his brother were militand Maxists. Further studies indicate that Schechter too was both of these. Indeed, Norman Bentwich (Solomon Schechter, a Biography (JPSA, (1938) conceles that be too like Frankel was a Reform cleric, We can thus better understand that with such beginnings, it is no wonder that the Conservative and their derivitive Reconstructionist movement, fate Reform enhance pages Satanic Lifestyles.

CRR clergy play a vicious game of Gestalt's psychology, a form of mind tape called RESPECT ABUSE. They abuse the innate respect that people have for Judaism and the Rabbinate by posing as Jewish tabbis. That they have the chutzpah after all the rotten dastardly things they did and continue to do and dare to fraudulcatly continue their head games before your Court is anazzing. It shows that they hold this Court in contempt and think that the court is so illiterate in Jewish history and ignorant of Jewish values that they will be able to continue their act before the Israeli Seprenc Court and it's Judges.

They invariably excess themselves by investing disinformation and other fabrications of Judaism. They even have some full circle on the blood libel, which their Frankist forbearers engaged in, resulting in Jews being membered. Thus, for example, lamar Schotsch, Chancellor of the Conservative Seminary called Agodat HaRabbinim criticism of his movement "an act of terrorism" (Daily News, (4/1697). He then went on to declare that a religious Jew relying on the texts concerning heretics will invariably kill; a CRR eleric stating: "in the current highly charged atmosphere is to incide unwittingly some unbalanced young fundamentalist either in Israei or America to carry out the letter of the law" (NY Times, Nat. PAC (40727) rese - 20).

"in the current highly charged atmosphere is to incite unwittingly some unbalanced young fundamentalist either in Israel or America to carry out the letter of the law" (NY Times, Nat. Ed. (4/17/97 page.20). This inflammatory libelous statement, is even more insidious when one considers that Schorch is the author of Jewish reactions to German Auti-Semitism, 1870 - 1914 (JPSA 1972), which is stuple estimaty that he known better, especially with his 71 paget of footnotes and bibliography belie. Indeed, the very archives that be cites on pp. 269 and 270 of his book, contain a treasury of information concerning the actual laws of executing the death penalty in our time. Again turning to the Rambam texts dealing with summary execution (Hill. Mamrim 3:2 and Hill. Chovel U'Mazik 8:10-11); Rambam declares that our category of haitor may be killed anywhere even at the present time when we do not by cases involving capital punishment. Nevertheless, be states that in the West, they punish the sincer and there is a variant reading removed by the censors. (Ibid 8:11) that they execute him. This refers to the fact that these people were actually executed if two criteria were met; sentencing by a Bet Din - Court of Jewish Law and permission of the Government. There are many texts to prove liks. There is a rationum by the Rashba (Solouxon Adre.) d.13(0) in the Bodelian Libarry (Ordord) Jewish Quartely Review (1890) 8:228) attesting to an execution with permission of the government, where the Rashba sked the Malfaram of Runenberg for his opinion. The are also short (Ottar Dinin U'Minhagin) and long (Ottar Yisrael) articles entitled Malshinu, attesting to this. The Rosh (Sbut, Klal 17:8) rules likewise, the death penalty when the government allows a Bet Din to adjucate such matters. In his encyclopoedia "Linoushin Active" Changet their laws." 1.) "In order that the Gentiles not adjucate the case, since many served by our judiciary who would otherwise be executed through their judgments. 2.) "In order to kill those that descreve d

Since the CRR cleary conduct which all righteous Gentiles exchew and ablor, then they certainly have chatzpah to demand that their phony conversions of Gentiles to Judaism be recognized, especially in Israel where total CRR membership is less than 1% of the Jewish population. How is that for Democracy?

What then however is the Halachic status of CRR laymen and the Israeli Chiloni? CRR laymen - expecting certain of their lay leadership - by and large are victims of RESPECT ABUSE. They become so confused that the profane appears divine. The Rambam states, Karaites rejecting the Oral Law are considered as innocent victims of circumstances whom we have the obligation of restore (hil. Mannim 3.3) since they follow the "customs of their fathers" and are considered "as the Jewish baby who was raised by Gentiles." He therefore does not apply the law of summary execution of beretics Only applies in an era when God's Providence is revealed as in an era of miracles and herverity voices, and the tightenes of the generation are guided by Divine Providence which is evident to everyone...for everyone knew that evil brings chaos, destruction and pestilence to the world." OVD Bit Statest 160 tita 2-16) (YD,Hill She (TLAR SECURE 210) Accordingly, he held that it does not apply in our times. Excicit 9, posits that in a Shoah the ones that are spared are those who scream bloody murder against abominations in society; and predicted the destruction of our people and the First Temple. Nevertheless, when Elijah confronted the priests of Baai before the Israelites, the people repeated of their sins and assisted him in summary execution of these pages priests, allowing none to escape (Kings I, 18:40). Thus we see that summary execution was reserved for those who enticed others to sin while the fairty was given a chance to repent in that generation.

In our time we see the dichotomy expressed by great Decision. Consider the Labevitcher Rebbe's, 2"I, letter of 15 Tanuz 5719 dealing with another Rambana: "my considered opinion...is based on the undisputable Halachic decision formulated by Rambam (HEL TShava 3-8) according to which the doctrines and ideology of the Conservative and Reform movements can only be classed in the category of heretical movements...membership in the New York Board of Rabbis...or similar religious bodies, strikes deeply at the roots of true Judiaian. Such membership cannot escape the logical inference that the Conservative and reform movements are recognized by the orthodox members of said bodies as belonging within the fold of true Judaian, differing only in degree or minor detail; whereas in truth these movements deny the very basis of true Judaian. Protestations to the contary can only be regarded as empty words, writted by actions."

words, refuted by actions." On 18 Adar 5716 (1956) 11 Denns of America's leading Yeshivot issued a declaration enjoining membership in the New York Board of Rabbis and similar groups. Several years later Rabbi David B, Hollander addressing Yeshiva University Alumen applied the same Rambaux, differentiating between the CRR clergy and the jsity stating: "Applying this to clergy (CRR) and only to clergy, because the laity is misled and can only be considered as non observant, not as rebels who reject the law,...Thus the clergy (CRR)...are promoting the spiritual and physical decline of the Jewish people. Under these circumstances how can Orthodox rabbis be colleagues of the enemy in a rabbinic society." "Why can we not be equally tolerant of the Conservative and Reform Movements and their clergy? Tolerance does not extend to fraud...The clergy (CRR) are misleading the Jew by expressly or implied y telling him that they are following, preserving the faith of their fathers, when this is plainly false."

In conclusion, the unaffiliated laity in the Diaspora or the an called Chilomi laity are considered Tinok Shenishba. They are considered on a higher moral place halachily than the modern priests of Baal. Their position is certainly intellectually superior than the decisit and respect abuse of the CRR. One of the worst elements of frauds of the CRR is in claiming the unaffiliated lew as their own. It is certainly and obviously not true for the Chilomi brashi and is definitely not so for the vast majority of unaffiliated lews in the Diaspora. Yet the CRR will continue to mislead your Coart with the big lie that they represent the majority of unaffiliated Diaspora lews. They have on such mandate. "Then shalt lower thy neighbor as thyself, I am HaShem (Lev 19-18)." Upon which the Baal Shem Tov comments, HaShem can't be written with two yuds. If one yid (a lew) is on one side of the earth and mother yid at the opposite end, then fulfilling this mitzva means one lew feeling the pain of the others fingernail.

Therefore, your Court of the State of Israel has a fiduciary obligation to make sure that the CRR, clergy and/or its representatives who can never even qualify under the Noahidic Laws as righteous Geniles, never obtain a foothold in the State of Israel, nor in any matters relating m Judaism for they are not Jewish, but satanic. Furthermore, they have no business serving on Religious Councils dealing with Jewish matters. Indeed, a Righteous Gentile has more in common with Judaism than CRR clergy as we have demonstrated.

Presented to the Court in the spirit of:

numing future who contributes the sucking baby" (Num.11:12; Sankedrin 8a) ands, a proper rabbinic Court carries on its back the collective responsibilities and the burden of its fellow Jews like the loving father who cares for the sursing baby who will never, , discard the baby because it distind its dispers. It is time not only to change the dirty dispers but make sure they are never solied again, especially by your Court.

"The negotiations have been disgusting," said Ravitz.

So far the claims against Generali in Israel number 70, according to lawyer Elisheva insurance companies, traveled extensively in Eastern Europe in an attempt to increase business.

Many Jews, thought to number thousands, decided to take out a variety of policies with Generali, which had all the ballmarks of a stable Western European company. Contracts were drawn up in villages and towns across Eastern Europe for life insurance and wedding endowment policies.

It is thought by some of those dealing with Holocaust victims' poli-cies, that some S0 percent to 90% of all life insurance in Eastern Europe was taken out with Generali, the vast majority by Jews

Immediately after the war, many of the families of Holocaust victims approached the company, but in some cases were told that without death certificates they were not entitled to claim on the policies. In late 1945, many of the company's Eastern European assets and liabilities were nationalized. The company maintains that in many instances the current European governments that took over from the communist regimes are the correct address for claims.

The matter became particularly seositive last year, when Generali, always a significant shareholder in Migdal Insurance, agreed to purchase the company from Bank Leumi. Ď.H.

Polish subsidiary insured Auschwitz billets

By DAVID HARRIS

A Polish subsidiary of the new owners of Migdal Insurance, Assiscurazioni Generali, was one of the insurers of the billets at Auschwitz, according to Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera.

The newspaper's Berlin reporter claims to have found papers in the Bundesarchiv in Berlin and Koblenz which show that Generali Port Polonia held a 16 percent stake in the policy that was covered by several companies including Bayerishe Vericherungsbank. This policy, signed on October 26, 1942, insured "the hillets in which people live and work in the lager in-Cracow" for 3 million ziorys. On February 26 the following year, new hillets were also insured, for an additional 6 million zlotys. The newspaper claims there are several other similar policies.

"We know nothing of this kind," wrote Generali." In our archives there is nothing concerning these contracts."

Ralston meets Cohen on top US army job US tries to negotiate Congo truce

WASHINGTON --- US Air

Force Gen. Joseph Ralston met vesterday with Defense Secretary William Cohen to discuss a decade old adulterous affair that appears to have doomed his chances to be the next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

After the hour-long meeting, Pentagon spokesman Sam Grizzle said." There is nothing to report." Ralston was widely expected to withdraw his name as a possible candidate for the highest military post in the United States following his meetings with Cohen and other Pentagon officials, including the current Joint Chiefs chairman, Anny Gen. John Shalikashvili Some Pentagon officials are raising the possibility that Shalikashvili might be persuaded to stay in his his post for anther two-year term, the New York Times reported yesterday. Quoting unnamed officials, the newspaper said the joint chiefs chairman, 60, is reluctant to stay on but might agree to it to help the military avoid further embarrassment. But a Pentagon official dismissed those reports later yesterday, saying that Shalikashvili has told colleagues he is not interested in such an option. Two other names that have emerged as possible candidates are Adm. Joseph Lopez, commander of Navy forces in Europe, and Gen. Wesley Clark, head of the US Southern Command the House National Security Committee, said the military should stay out of personal sex lives naless they interfere with good order and conduct. Meanwhile, in another mititary sex scandal, a US Army sergeant accused of raping or sexually barassing female recruits went on trial yesterday in the second military court proceeding to examine allegations of sexual abuse at a Darmstadt training center in Darmstadt, Germany. Sgt. Paul Fuller, 25, of Columbus, Ohio, is charged with 17 connts, including rape and attempted rape.

The same military court last Thursday cleared Sgt. Julius Davis, another former Darmstadt instructor, of six rape charges but convicted him of multiple counts of indecent assault. The jury sentenced Davis to two years in prison, ordered a bad-conduct discharge and a reduction in rank.

Fuller's trial opened with prosecutor Capt. Christopher Hellmich telling the court be will show "the devastating impact that one out of control noncommissioned officer"

"They never kicked, they never screamed, they never bit, they never said no," he told the court.

Mortar fire thundered through the Republic of Congo's capital yeslerday as government troops battled militiamen. France poured in soldiers and US officials tried to negotiate a truce so foreigners could safely flee. Five days after fighting broke out, militiamen loyal to the country's former military leader, Gen. Denis Sassou-Nguesso, appeared to have gained the upper hand. Civilians fleeing in private planes and in canoes rowed frantically across the Congo River to Kinshasa said Sassou-Nguesso's men controlled the building housing radio and television.

Sassou-Nguesso's 5,000-strong army also expanded its control to in the northern districts.

France sent a C-130 cargo plane to Brazzaville yesterday with armed vehicles to reinforce French forces in the city, and about 500 French soldiers were deployed from neighboring Bangui, Central African Republic and Libreville, Gabon. They will join about 450 French soldiers already stationed in the former French colony. At least one French soldier has been killed since Thursday, struck down by gunfire while trying to guide civilians from a besteged neighborhood. French troops continued their mission yesterday to reach civilians stranded in crossfire. The Foreign Ministry in Paris

In Kinshasa, a 20-minute canoe ride across the river, the sounds of heavy fighting could be heard past midnight and again early yesterday. At 6 o'clock this morning heavy fighting resumed, with mortar fire," a French Embassy official said.

Alexis Jaraud, the embassy's spokesman military in Brazzaville. said Sassou-Nguesso's men controlled the north of the city while government troops held the south. Fighting was concentrated vesterday in the central part of the city.

Jaraud added that it was impossible to determine the number of deaths because of the difficulties said about 550 foreigners had been moving through the streets, but that the use of heavy anillery made casualties likely.

US Embassy officials in Brazzaville were in radio contact with both sides in the conflict and trying to arrange a truce so that civilians seeking shelter at the Embassy could be flown to Kinshasa.

"We are hoping we can get some kind of cease-fire at least long enough to get them to the airport, said a western diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity. He said fighting that had raged around the downtown embassy appeared to have passed through the area and that the two dozen people inside the compound were safe.

Violence erupted last week when President Pascal Lissouba's troops, fearing attempts to disrupt next month's presidential elections, tried to disarm members of Sassou-Nguesso's militia.

Sassou-Nguesso ruled as a dictator for more than a decade until he was forced to introduce political reforms in 1991.

Since Saturday, about 100 foreigners, half of them Americans, have been evacuated on private airplanes chartered by the US Embassy. Evacuations were been hampered by militia battles, and rescue attempts had to be suspended early Sunday.

Americans who took the fiveminute shuttle flight to Kinshasa described artillery exchanges in the streets of Brazzaville and residents cowering in their homes.

Turks use fake bomb to hijack plane

COLOGNE (AP) - Two men forced their way into the cockpit with a package they claimed was a bomb and commandeered an Air Malta jetliner to Germany in a bizarre publicity stunt for a fellow Turk who shot Pope John Paul II in 1981.

Flight QM830 was headed from Malta to Istanbul, Turkey, when the hijackers, both in their 20s, forced the American pilot to change course and demanded be land at Cologne airport.

They surrendered to police with their hands up after three hours of negotiations, freeing 72 other passengers and the Boeing 737's crew of six. No one was hurt, and police said the bomb was fake.

The officer in charge of the operation, Winrich Granitzka, said the hijackers wanted to make "a statement of solidarity" for Mehmet Ali Agca, jailed in Italy for sbooting the pope, so he would feel "he has not been abandoned." He withdrew early police statements that the hijackers were pressing for the release of Agca, who is serving a life sentence.

The two men were "not very aggressive," even dud fully paying for cigarettes they bought on board, police said.

Whither we goest

omorrow the story of the most famous and poetic conversion to Judaism will be read in synagogues throughout the world. "Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people will be my people and thy God my God," Ruth said to her mother-in-law, Naomi, and with that she became a Jew. One wonders whether Ruth, who according to tradition lived long enough to see her descendants David and Solomon become kings, would have been able to convert to Judaism in today's Israel.

Time is running out on the Supreme Court's June 30 deadline for the government's response on the conversion issue. Next week, the Knesset Law Committee is to prepare the legislation for its second reading, and proposals for a compro-mise that will head off the legislation are flying fast and furious.

The compromise proposals, understandably, all attempt to sidestep the thorniest issue of "Who is a Jew?" and focus instead on the practical ways to finesse the problem. Since almost anyone who converts in Israel is already a citizen - hy marriage to, or as an adopted child of, Jews - the main issue at stake is the line stating "Nationality: Jew" on the identity cards of most Israelis.

The religious parties object to having an official government document state that someone who went through a non-Orthodox conversion is a Jew. A number of compromises have been proposed that would remove the line altogether, or replace it with a letter or symbol other than the word "Jew." The latter solution would allow each side to interpret the symbol in its own way, without forcing either to state something it believes is untrue.

All of these proposals are in fact "second generation" compromises, in that they deal with the details surrounding the grand compromise that has been in place since the founding of the state. The so-called "status quo" regarding conversions is that non-Orthodox conversions performed abroad are recognized, while the same conversions performed in Israel are not. Like many other imperfect solutions people have learned to live with, it is not long on logic, but somehow reflects a halance between the different realities - in this case between Israel and the largest Diaspora Jewish community, American Jewry.

The current crisis is born of the inability of Vigal Allon is back in the news. The latest cartographic proposal for solving the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, not yet seen by the public, has been compared to the plan drawn up by the former politician-soldier in the immediate aftermath of the Six Day War.

At a recent conference held to commemorate 30 years since that war, a leading settlement planner of the period, Yehiel Admoni, suggested that Allon had in fact prepared his plan as far back as the late '40s; that in the aftermath of the 1967 war be dusted it off and presented it to the Eshkol government

Allon, commander of the Palmach forces in 1948, had wanted, so the history books tell us, to capture the whole of the West Bank and extend control of the new state as far as the Jordan. River. But Ben-Gurion insisted that he take his troops and capture the Negev, to provide the new state with an expanse of relatively unsettled land for future development.

THE existence of this large settlement network has proved the single overwhelming constraint for Israeli negotiators preparing maps for the final status negotiations. Any Israeli proposal that takes account of this network will, of necessity, produce a map made up of disconnected pieces of territory, continuing to display the cheeseboard impression of the Oslo 2 map. This was precisely the scenario

Allon wanted to avoid. A member of the Ahdut Avoda movement, Allon didn't treat settlements lightly. Just as they had heen responsible in part for determining borders in 1948, so too did he see them as determining the state's future boundaries. One thing Allon did not want was to create settlement "facts" in areas which would limit Israel's maneuverability in future negotiations. Any proposal made today must deal with the human geography of today's West Bank, including some 140,000 Jewish residents in areas Allon did nol want settled. It cannot, misleadingly, call up old plans dealing with totally different realities.

As we lurch toward marginally better government, what is there to say for the proposal, made at the recent cahinet session, that the commission to be set up to appraise all candidates for major governmental posts include a majority of three cabinet ministers? The answer is very little; more (or less) than that, it is a step backwards.

That the prime minister was forced to commit himself to establishing a vetting body of this kind was the only "step forward" in the entire shameful Bar-On Affair.

Netanyahu had to take it because the same attorney-general's report that exonerated him of criminal charges in connection with his botched attempt to appoint Roni Bar-On also found him woefully remiss both in his choice of candidate and in the way he railroaded that choice

Yisrael Ba'Aliya's Natan Sharansky and Avigdor Kahalani of the Third Way, who held Netanyahu's political fate in their bands at the denouement of the affair, insisted that future appointments be vetted by a public commission before submission to the cabinet for final approval. Sharansky, Finance Minister Dan Meridor and Education Minister Zevulun Hammer were named to work out proposals.

Their original idea was to have a body consisting of the attorney-

Sir, - In your article of May 28, reporting the visit of Derek Fatchett, a minister of the new British government, you did not comment upon an important detail. In addition to his rather bland remarks with respect to Har Homa. Mr. Fatchett stated unequivocally that the Har Homa construction, as that of all other "settlements," is illegal in the view of his government. He said nothing about illegal Palestinian construction, nonextradition of murderers, smuggling of illegal arms into the PA areas, fomenting (if not implementing) terrorist acts and murders, or anything similar. Illegality, like fungihility before it, is apparently exclusively a disease of Israeli actions. Nor did he explain why construction in Jerusalem, which is not forbidden hy the Oslo agree-

A captivating choir from St. Petersburg

The St. Petersburg Chamber Choir gave a purifying and fault-less rendition of the Rachmaninoff Vespers. Nikolai Korniev's choir is a captivating vocal ensemble which mesmerized the audience with its sublime performance of a difficult work. I hope that local orchestras will invite them to return as they are one of the very best choirs from the former Soviet Union to have sung here.

Extraordinary baritone Dmitri Hvorostovsky's rendition of the song cycle Russia Cast Adrift hy Georgii Vasilevich Sviridov (born 1915) was one of the highlights of the festival. Hvorostovsky's instrument is warm, deep, caressing and gripping. He will no doubt become identified with this extraordinary song cycle, which captures the trials and tribulations of the Russian people. Michael Ajzenstodt Woyzeck, by Josef Nadj, is a theatrical nightmare, inspired by George Buchner's 1837 play, a tale of distress that is resolved by killing. Nadj creates an oppressive environment, befitting the grotesque figures, who busy themselves in futile acts such as trying to put a broken egg together again!

His wild inventiveness is impressive and the stage becomes thick with oppressive images in symbolic scenes. In one of them, a man cuts a piece of his own liver and nonchalantly eats it. Nadj takes the easy way, by concentrating on "interesting," photogenic wretchedness, and leaves his work devoid of compassion or hope. It makes you long for the abstraction of Habakkuk, his previous work at the Festival Ora Brafman

The Rustaveli State Theater's attempt to encapsulate the passion and uncontrolled craving for power and dominance in Macbeth was nest that - an attempt. The not-so-simultaneous Hebrew translation, projected very high above the stage, caused people with motile necks to ping-pong their heads np and down. In addition, the stage was barren, props were hard to find, and the murder-laden play was bloodless. Mid-show a man wandered onto the back of the stage with his video camera and at one point the translation hmke down altogether, forcing the audience to stare at a Microsoft icon for 10 minutes. Georgians interviewed loved the show, so if you're Georgian or know Macbeth by heart you probably had a great time. Oh yeah, Lady Macbeth was kind of sexy. Robby Berman Robby Berman

In the performance by Mediterranean world-music maestro Omar Faruk Tekbilek and his ensemble, and the local band Bustan Avraham, the wannabe easily outshone the master. Tekbilek's performance often had a slick. New Age quality, whereas Bustan's glowed with exuberance. In listening to the Israeli ensemble's successfal weaving of instruments as disparate as the banjo, oud, flute and qanoon, the audience was swept off on a journey and made partner to costasy, both spiritual and carnal. And from the smiles on their faces, it was clear that the band members were having as good a timeas their andience. Emily Hauser

Pires lives in a secluded farm 250 kilometers from Lisbon. "It is a totally wild place in the middle of nowbere. In a place like this you are part of nature and you begin to think in a different way."

The farm is almost entirely self-sufficient, growing its own products for daily use and specializing in producing olive oil. Pires built the farm for a very specific reason: to lure young artists and musicians to come and talk about their problems. And the youth of today have numerous prohlems, she observes. "Musicians have forgotten why they are making music, teachers have forgotten why they are teaching. The right way of playing music has nothing to do with technique, money and a career. But she is not aggravated or bothered by the fact, quite the contrary: "Nothing really bothers me. I learned to play the piano with these bands, I never had different hands so I don't know the feeling. Yes, I would also love to play the Bartok concerti, but instead I play the chamber music of these composers so my repertoire is not totally devoid of their work." Pires plays Mozart's Ninth

Piano Concerto with the IPO this week, a concerto she is very fond of. "I used to do a lot of Mozart in the past but now I do less, now I play more Schubert. In this specific concerto I feel Mozart was not influenced by his time and surrounding. "I'm not fond of baroque music in general because most of it is not true to itself. Composers must first and foremost represent their time but not be influenced by it. I like to play music which is pure and power-ful, music which is true to itself. This concerto is full of drama and different colors, yet I find it really difficult to explain in words, words are so poor compared to the music."

Maria Joao Pires plays with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra tomorrow, Saturday at the Mann Auditorium in Tel Aviv and Thursday at the Jerusalem International Convention Center.

Teva may move 120 jobs abroad due to patent laws

By JENNIFER FRIEDLIN

Restrictive Israeli patent laws might cause pharmaceutical giant Teva to move part of its research and development operations, including 120-150 jobs, to the US, company vice president Aaron Schwartz said yesterday. While both local and American patent-protection laws give original drug manufacturers a certain number of years to sell their innovative drugs on the market before generic drugs are allowed to compete, only US law allows companies to conduct research on original products before the patent protection expires. Therefore, American R&D facilities have a significant time advantage in developing genetic drugs, Schwartz said.

Teva has been trying to change the law since 1994, when it was passed

BUSINESS&FINANCE

But legislators, influenced by outside pressure, decided to maintain the current law, forcing Teva to consider closing down research and development facilities.

We tried to negotiate with the Israeli courts, but under American and European pressure the law remained intact," Schwartz said. Other companies, which have a total of 16,000 R&D employees, are also affected by the current law, Schwartz said.

Meanwhile, globalization trends are forcing Teva to also consider moving manufacturing facilities to Europe, Haim Benjamini, deputy director-general of human resources said last week during a seminar at the Israel Management Center.

The company is currently consid-ering moving jobs to Teva's pre-existing manufacturing facilities, while upgrading local facilities to exploit Israel's relative advantage. "We want to adapt local facilities

Tokyo money brokers take a break before the start of afternoon trading after the US currency tumbled to the 111 yen level in the morning session yesterday. The dollar tumbled against the yen in Tokyo on the narrowing of the interest rate gap between the US and Japan, and fears of renewed trade fiction between the two countries, dealers said. At one point the dollar fell to 111.80 yen, its lowest since November 25, 1996, from its close of 114.38 yen in New York on Friday. (Reuter)

The move could even be made unilaterally, wrote Gillerman in a letter to Industry and Trade Minister Natan Sharansky.

Restricted imports are already permissible from Qatar and Oman, Peri pointed out. Israel's Trade Representation Office head in Oatar Sami Ravel said it is important where relations already exist that Israel do its utmost to strengthen them. Korea's Hanwha to open local office

Hanwha Ltd., Korea's ninth largest industrial concern, will establish a local representative office next month, said chairman Seung Yun Kim, who is currently here as part of a company delegation.

Hanwha also announced a $6.5 million deal with TAAS-Military Industries to purchase military

"There are many areas of business that Hanwha can develop via Israeli companies," said Kim Chul Hoon, who will be Hanwha's Israel-based representative.

Hoon said that Hanwha is currently planning to expand its operation and is considering opening up a semiconductor plant here. He said Hanwha has been impressed by Israeli semiconductor companies and hopes to develop business arrangements with them. He did not name specific companies.

After Industry and Trade Minister Natan Sharansky traveled to Korea in December, Hanwha decided to visit Israel in search of joint ventures and investment opportunities. The company has visited Israeli telecommunications, semiconductor and biotechnology companies, as well as the Technion's Faculty of Space Engineering regarding satellite development.

The concern is also discussing the development of defense technologies with Israel Aircraft Industries. Hanwha, whose interests span the chemical, machinery, electronics and securities-trading sectors, is looking to invest $1.2 billion in 1997 in non-memory chip development.

Israei's trade volume with Korea totals $700m., with almost all the exports to Korea in high-tech products.

"Trade with Morocco, for example, is many thousands of percent larger than these official figures," said Barak.

However, Barak maintains trade with Israel's Arab neighbors will never be particularly. sizable. He cited a variety of . reasons including: • The buge difference between the economies and markets is, extremely difficult to bridge. The exception to this pattern is in the Gulf states, where there is a slightly higher per capita GDP and therefore Israeli exports become affordable, particularly in exchange for petroleum.

· The type of imports needed in Arab countrics are largely not compatible with what Israel bas. to offer.

Admitting that trade is carried out with most Arab states including Lebanon, Syria and Iraq, usually via a third country or offshore company - Barak urged Israelis not to enter these countries "with Israeli flags aloft," but rather take a gentle, quiet approach.

Gustavo Kuerten prepares to serve to Sergi Bruguera during the French Open final which the Brazilian won in straight sets. (Remen

'Guga' is all the rage

Brazilian Kuerten adds samba beat to French Open lore

PARIS (AP) – Two weeks ago, most people had never heard of Gustavo Kuerten, Guess what? The 20-year-old Brazilian nicknamed "Guga" is a Grand Slam champion.

Kuerten routed Sergi Bruguera 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 Sunday to win the French Open and become the lowest ranked player (No. 66) to capture a Grand Slam title.

The victory capped one of the most improbable tournaments in Grand Slam history, with a player coming out of nowhere to beat three former French Open champions en route to his first tour-level victory of any kind.

Kuerten is the first Brazilian man to win a Grand Slam, and only the third unseeded player to win the French Open, following Marcel Bernard in 1946 and Mats Wilander in 1982.

Kuerten had never advanced past a quarterfinal in any tour-level event and was playing only the 49th match of his career. Three weeks ago, he was playlog - and winning - a small-time satel-lite tournament in Curitiba, Brazil.

Yet, Kuerten sailed through a field decimated by upsets, beating former champions Thomas Muster (1995), Yevgeny Kafelnikov (1996) and Bruguera (1993, 1994) along the way.

Kuerten's victory followed Saturday's surprise fastest final since 1980 when Bjorn Borg beat Vitas Gerulaitis in 1:46.

Kuerten bowed deeply to Borg, the six-time French Open champion who presented him with the trophy. He also embraced Guillermo Vilas, winner in 1977, before holding up the cup and kissing it.

"It was the first time I really believed that I had won," Kuerten said.

He dedicated the victory to his father, who died while umpiring a tennis match when Kuerten was 8 years old.

"He was the person I really loved and I miss him a lot," Kuerten said. "This trophy and this tournament goes to him, and I'm sure he's really happy right now."

An hour after the match, a samba band struck up Brazilian rhythms inside the Roland Garros complex, with fans chanting, "Gu-Ga! Gu-Gal" Kuerten emerged on a balcony with his coach, Larri Passos. He struggled to pop open a bottle of champagne before spraying the buhbly over his fans.

"I never won a title - that's why I don't know how to opeo champagne," he said.

Hailing from the seaside town of Florianopolis in the southern Brazilian state of Santa Caterina, Kuerten is a scrawny b-foot-3 suffing enthusia who looks as if he could have walked straight off the beach. Dressed from head to toe in the colors of Brazil, he wore a blue and yellow shirt, hlue shorts, yellow socks, hlue shoes and a checkered bandana. The only white in his outfit was a small stripe down the side of his shorts. "I think for Wimbledon, I have to change my clothes, maybe," he said. Bruguera, the lowest seed at No. 16, is one of the strongest clay-court players of his generation. But Sunday, he was helpless as Kuerten dictated the points, moving him from side to side, stepping in to knock off winners. Kuerten's higgest weapon was his forehand.

He played an outstanding match," Bruguera said. "Maybe I wait for lum to give me the match, and he weat for the match."

By the fifth game of the match, when he broke for the first time, Kuerten started skipping between points, pumping his fist and hopping back ioto position.

Kuerten hroke Bruguera six times, twice in each set, while losing his own serve only once. He lost only four points on serve until he was broken for the only time midway through the second set.

The key moment came in the ninth game of the second set at 4-4.

With Kuerten serving, he faced three break points and saved all three to win the game. Energized, he ran to his chair for the changeover. "That was the worst part in the match for me," Kuerten said.

"But I really was calm and I went for big shots." The game seemed to deflate Bruguera. Kuerten broke him in the next game to close the set with a forehand winner.

In the third set, Kuerten converted two identical backhand drop shots that were so well disguised, so perfectly placed, that Bruguera didn't even move for either of them. That put Kuerten up 4-2. Two games later, Kuerten broke again to close the match, with Bruguera netting a backhand approach shot on the final point. Kuerten bent over, then held up his arms, as his friends and family hugged each other wildly in the guest box. His mother unfurled the red,

But if the odds on the pair repeating their Roland Garros success in London are about the same as the French voting to adopt fish and chips as their national dish. the Paris experience was unsettling for both world oumber ones.

Hingis, in particular, now knows she can take nothing for granted if she wants to build a grand slam career record to compare with her predecessors Steffi Graf and Monica Seles.

The 16-year-old should enjoy plenty of marvellous days into the next millennium but Saturday's women's final was definitely not one of them. She blamed Majoli's 6-4, 6-2 win on tiredness, yet the Croat was among those who felt there was not much physically wrong with her opponent.

"I knew she was confident but I

PARIS (Reuter) - Pete Sampras also knew she was not unbeatable," said Majoli, now fifth in the world despite never having won a match at Wimbledon in two previous visits.

Majoli is now concentrating on her first hurdle at Wimbledon where the grass is so alien she joked she would have to spend the next two weeks eating it as preparation.

My next dream is to win my first round match at Wimbledon...I've never won a match there in the juniors, the doubles or the singles," she said. I'm prepared to die on court at Wimbledon just to win that first round.'

Beyond that, Majoli feels she is now ready to threaten the established elite, many of whom are showing increasing signs of strain.

"I know Martina is number one and there is also Steffi and Monica but I feel I can fight with them for first place," Majoli insisted. "I think I'm ready. That's my next goal.'

Sampras, meanwhile, will have watched Kuerten's 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 success with distinctly mixed feel-

His dreams of winning the French utle for the first time looked closer to reality than ever until a stomach bug fatally weakened his resistance in his third round encounter with Sweden's Magnus Norman, a result which helped propel Belgian qualifier Filip Dewulf into a semifinal with Kuerten.

On most surfaces on most days, Sampras might expect to have too much power for the Brazilian but is prone to attracting sudden problems when the horizon looks completely clear.

He will still be regarded as favorite to collect his third Wimbledon title io four years but there were subtle hints from the likes of Pat Rafter, Mark Philippoussis and Yevgeny Kafelnikov that he may be forced to work harder than ever.

Goran Ivanisevic, a first round loser in Paris, also remains more than capable of following Majoli's lead and completing a notable Croatian double but Kuerten is not expecting to succeed Bjorn Borg in 1980 as the last man to win the French and Wimbledon in the same vear.

"It's a great feeling but I'm not thinking too much about the future," admitted the colourful Brazilian, preparing for his first appearance in the main draw at the All England Club

"For Wimbledon I have to change my clothes but that will not be my biggest problem. I'll go there to learn and, if I'm lucky, to win some rounds."

The next threat to Sampras, it, seems, will lie elsewhere.

ZAGREB (Reuter) - Croatia's press hailed their ... new sporting hero Iva Majoli yesterday after her triuniph in the French Open on Sanurday made her the first Croatian winner of a Grand Slam singles title. "Iva's victory at Roland Garros was the most beautiful tango in Paris. It was the first tango she danced at Grand Slam tournaments but it will not be the last," the daily Vjesnik said. All the dailies splashed pictures of an exuberant. Majoli, claff in a flower-patterned dress after upsetting world No. 1 Martina Hingis, holding the heavy. winner's cup that she so surprisingly captured. Immediately after her victory Croatian television showed several minutes of film replaying the best moments of the match, with shots of her jubilant mother and friends and close-ups of her unbelieving smile after Hingis netted the last ball of the match. "After Iva Majoli's triumph at Roland Garros on Saturday nothing will ever be the same for Croatian tennis. Because that Saturday of June 7 194 Majoli and Croatian tennis were inscribed in sport history books, Vjesnik reported from Paris. Papers reported that President Franjo Tudithan had sent congratulations to Majoli for her 'majestic victory," on behalf of all the Croatian public and personally.

The only press criticism was of senior officials from the Croatian Termis Association and the Croatian Olympic Committee - none of whom: numed up at the airport to welcome the new champion home.

"I did every shot perfectly," he said. "Today was my best match of the tournament. I didn't think, 'Wow, it's a final and I have to with.' I just play like I practice. I was pretty relaxed." The match lasted 1 hour, 50 minutes, the money would go into his savings. "I just have all that I need right now," he said. "I mean, my life is perfect even before this tournament, I have everything that I need."

MELBOURNE (AP) - The Adelaide Crows took a 33-point first-quarter lead Sunday en route to a 52-point win over Melbourne in an Australian Football League Australian Rules football match. The Crows won their third straight road game, defeating Melbourne 14.13 (97) to 5.15 (45).

In the other Sunday match, SLKilda's Robert Harvey collected 35 possessions in the Saints' surprise 16-point victory over West Coast, 13.11 (89) to 11.7 (73).

South Africa close in on France '98

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) -South Africa stung Zambia with two quick goals as they moved a step. closer to next year's finals in France with a 3-0 World Cup qualifying win on Sunday.

The African champions, seeking their first appearance in the finals; now need to beat Congo in their final qualifier at home next month to make sure of a trip to France. Goals from Helman Michaleie and Phil Masinga in the first 16 minutes : effectively ended the Zambian challenge and their World Cup hopes. Mark Williams added a third after 74 minutes to seal South Africa's victory.

Mkhalele gave the home team the perfect start after nine minutes when. he was allowed to run at the Zambian defense and fire-home from the edge of the penalty area.

The winger then turned provider for the second goal when a deflection landed at Mkhalele's feet and played the perfect square ball for Masinga to tuck away. Zambia fought gallantly for much of the match but were unable to find a way through a South African defence experily marshalled by captain Lucas Radebe. Andrew Tembo came closest to pulling one back for Zambia but his flying header midway through the second half was just wide

Williams ended the home fans' anxiety with a close-in shot that hit the post before going in for South Africa's third.

Hardwood 'Hail Mary' Stockton's full-court pass to Malone gives Jazz shot in the arm NEW YORK (AP) - The Chicago Bulls learned the hard way what complacency has in common with the perfect pass." Stockton-to-Malone. Drop your guard for the tiniest moment and -- BAM! -- both will go back-door against

That was exactly what happened Sunday night with 44 seconds left in Game 4 of the NBA Finals in Salt Lake City. Michael Jordan took a jumper and missed. His backcourt mate at the time, Steve Kerr, slid underneath the basket instead of rotating back on defense. John Stockton rebounded the ball, spotted soulmate

Karl Malone running the floor and let fly with a long, arching pass.

It went over Scottie Pippen, past Toni Kukoc and just beyond the reach of Jordan, desperately racing back to cover Malone.

"I know it will play over and over in my mind, like I could have got that pass," Jordan said. "But I was off-stride. I didn't have the momentum to go up and get it."

Malone did. After rushing out to try and block Jordan's jumper, he put his head down and simply kept on running. The small act of faith was rewarded when Stockton's pass reached him in full stride.

Malone converted the layup and put Utah ahead for good, 74-73.

The ball wasn't in the air for more than a second or two. But it was long enough to become the signature play for two men who have executed it unselfishly a few thousand times in the dozen years they've been together.

The amazing thing is not that it worked. And the reason for that is that Stockton and Malone have never dred of trying to perfect their combination. There are any number of variations to the pass - sometimes Malone comes off screens to get the ball, sometimes he picks and then rolls. Usually they run it over shorter distances, and in tighter quarters. But never on a bigger occasion.

"I'll remember it forever," Malone said. "It had to be Leaving home up two games to none, the Bulls said all the right things for public consumption. They insisted anybody who thought they were going to Utah expecting a coronation should have their head examined.

"We realized this was not over when we left Chicago," Pippen said. "We know how good they play at home." Whether they believed it then, the series is tied 2-2 and everybody on the Chicago side of the ball now understands they are actually playing against someone else - that it is not only the Bulls that can beat the Bulls.

We came here to win one game, and if we play like we did tonight, we will win the next game," Chicago coach Phil Jackson said.

That remains to be seen. Last year in the final round, the Bulls dropped two games in Seattle, but the losses turned out to be nothing more than a lapse on Chicago's part. Once they got the fragile, self-centered SuperSonics back in Chicago, all doubts were quickly erased.

Utah, on the other hand, looks poised, opportunistic and more confident the longer it is allowed to share the

Naturally, everybody is looking to Jordan to bail-Chicago out - no matter that such thinking is probably to blame for nearly every one of the Buils' losses. He nearly did it one more time Sunday night, but Fordan's attempt at a game-tying 3-pointer bounced on: Afterward, he talked about being mortal, about not being able to score 60 points or hit the big shot night in and night out. His biggest assignment 'come tomorrow night might be convincing his feammates not to wait to see him proved mortal again: "I anticipate this team," he said, "will teatize it's

By lunch Sunday skeptics may have been thinking that England's best two days of crick-et this summer had already come and gone.

A win would give England a 1-0 advantage in the Ashes for the first time in 10 years, when Mike Gatting's tourists won in Brisbane before going on to win the series 2-1. The winners of the first Test in the last five series has gone on to win the Ashes.

Victory, following England's 2-0 triumph in New Zealand, would also give England three consecutive wins for the first time since 1991-92 when they beat West Indies, Sri Lanka and New Zealand.

Chasing 118 to win, Atherton raced to his 32nd half-century, and in the process passed 5,000 Test runs in 68 Tests. When his vicecaptain Alec Stewart crunched Warne to the cover boundary for the winning runs, the ecstatic Edgbaston crowd flooded the field. Slewart grabbed a stump or two as a memento. The crowd sang and chanted "Enger-land, Eng-er-land." It was as if the series, not just one match, had already been won.

Interestingly, England coach Glenn Hoddle voted for Rogaldo, Shearer and Weah in that order.

"He's a very nice, ordinary down to earth lad who seems able to handle all of the fame and adulation coming his way in a very level-headed way," Shearer said of Ronaldo recently. "We spent most of the day together, talking about life as you do, and football. I liked him." And Ronaldo paid Shearer the highest compliment when he said: "My ambition is to do for my country what Alan Shearer does for his - score important goals regularly.

"Everyone has heard of Alan Shearer, he is one of the great players in the world today and be is the standard you have to judge yourself by." And every-one interested in football has heard of Ronaldo too. Barely out of his teens, he is about to leave. Barcelona for Inter Milan for a reported transfer fee of £50 million ($81.6 million). That dwarfs the £15 million Newcastle, United paid Blackburn Rovers for Shearer last summer.

Shearer's goal was his 11th in his last 11 internationals and the 16th in his 34 England appearances. Ronaldo has played 20 times for Brazil and scored 13 times.

The style of the two meo is not entirely dissimilar. Both use their strength to create room and time for themselves, both have an innate sense of where the goal is, and both are blessed with the talent to exploit the chances that come their way.

They differ mainly in their approach to goal Ronaldo is full of running and willing to dribble through a maze of defenders to score. Shearer uses more guile, taking up positions while team mates behind him create the chances for him to snap up. "I think England have played very well to have

by Rabbi Mordechai Gafni

accurding to the Ba'al Shem Tov, the entire community of Israel renews the cnvenant - the commitment of the Jewish people to live in accordance with the ethical-spiritual guidelines of the Thrah. The particularly troubling questinn this year - made more urgent by events nf recent months is: Is there a covenant that still unites us as a spiritual community? Is there a common language still shared by the entire community of Israel? Perhaps the most daring attempt at articulating such a common language comes from the Orthodax Talmudist, R. Joseph Soloveitchik. His suggestions is based on a powerful new insight into the idea of covenant. For him covenant implies not nnly those commitments which Jews make to God - but also to those commitments Jews make tn each nther. By calling this a cnvenant, R. Soloveitchik is suggesting that how we relate to each other is not only a political/national issue, but a spiritual/covenental issue as well. His simple yet radical formulation of this idea is that there is not one Jewish covenant, but two. The first is the Covenant of Egypt, of the exodus, and the second is the Covenant of Sinai. Accurding to Rabbi Soloveitchik, the Covenant of Egypt is a brit goral, a covenant of fate, which expresses itself in our ineradicable Jewish identity. It finds expression in the Exodus story and in the holiday of Passover. It is no accident that the novel Exodus became a symbol of Jewish identity. Both the story of the founding of the State of Israel in the novel and the nriginal Biblical exndus story are about Jewisb peoplehood and its responsibilities.

The Covenant of Sinai, no the nther hand, is described as brit ye'ud, a covenant of destiny. The covenant of destiny finds expression not in the narrative section of the Torah, but in the legal/moral lessons of the Torah, which we celebrate on Shavuot. The covenant of fate, which was made at the exodus from Egypt, emerges out of the Jewish people's loneliness and isolation on the historical stage. If the Bible refers to Abraham as ha'ivri, the Hebrew, it is as the midrash says: because the whole tainly holds true.

world stood on one bank (ma'avar), and he stood on the other (figuratively speaking). The covenant of fate is demarcated in several ways. First, it is the recognition of common fate and common history. Rich or poor, learned or ignorant, secular or religious, historical fate has never distinguished between different kinds of Jews. The security of Jews in the Diaspora is intimately bound up with that of Jews in Israel, and a lack of safety in any part of the world undermines the safety of Jews everywhere. In terms of fate, the well-known Talmudic dictum

Second, the covenant of fate ficiently religious character to expresses itself in a sense of be termed a covenant - one of the most important spiritual desshared pain. The people of Israel is analogous to the two-headed ignations in Jewish thought. son on whom a legal question more than a cnincidence of once arose: should he receive one portion of his father's inherpolitical interests. It is a shared historical fate and identity that is itance or two? The scholars suggested a simple solution: pour embraced by the entire commuboiling water over nne bead, and nity of Israel. Rav Kuk captures if the other head screams you the religious power of the covenant of fate in his epigramwill know without a doubt that he is truly one person. The matic observation: "The spirit of remarkable pbenomenon by God and the spirit of Israel are which the entire Jewish people one." The covenant of fate is thus the beginning of a common feels the pain of each of its parts confirms that we remain one language for all Jews. The covenant of fate says that we people.

Third, the covenant of fate implies sbared responsibility. If one Jew commits a crime, it somehow implicates other Jews in a way that isn't true for the French or Chinese. In a more positive sense, shared responsibility can take the form of political and social action. If Jews are in trouble anywhere in the world, all Jews respond. Witness the Soviet Jewry movement or the Ethiopian airlift. The resurgence of Jewish political autonomy and the assumption of social responsibility which have emerged with the creation of the State of Israel are understood by Rabbi Soloveitchik in terms of the covenant of fate. It is of overarching signifiof pluralism.

And yet, while pluralism implies that we don't need to agree on the content of the covenant of destiny, we need to be ever-vigilant that our pluralism doesn't degenerate into a fig leaf for relativism. Pluralism needs to dramatically affirm that everyone is Jewish but not that everything is Jewish. The fact that a writer might be Jewish does not automatically make everything s/he says - Judaism.

The covenant of fate demands that we live together and respect the spiritual integrity of our respective positions. We do not, however, need to grant legitimacy to positinns we think are wrong. It is not sinful to think another person or another movement is wrong; provided, of course, that we don't use nur critique of another position to blind ourselves to the weaknesses and fallacies which may be inherent in our own positions. A spiritual position that invests all of its passion into delegitimizing the "other" becomes corrupt, lethargic, and ultimately blind to its own moral failures. Like the vigilant political-correctness, pluralism can become fanaticism that burns non-adherents at the stake.

The principled egalitarian need not be excoriated for refusing to grant legitimacy to the non-egalitarian and the observant Jew need not be asked to legitimize the opinion of someone whose only dogmatic principle is radical human autonomy.

Pluralism, to be in any way meaningful in the Jewish community, has twn paradoxical assumptions: The first is that it has limits; not everything is acceptable. "Messianic Judaism," for example, is excluded from the community." by all sectors of the community. It is beyond the limits of pluralism. It repudiates a basic Jewish idea - that the Messiah must bring an end to suffering if he is to be considered Messiah. The second condition is that the covenant must bave positive content. The positive content must include three basic elements: God, Torah and Israel. A group which repudiates any one of the three, excludes itself from the company of serious Jews.

Without a notion of one (God) who demands ethics and holiness (Tnrah) and who demands. that the Jew play a unique role in the drama of history (Israel). there is no Judaism. We can disagree on which of the three is " most important. We can disagree on how to interpret the Torah, or the nature of God, and even on what the criteria are for joining the people of Israel, but we can-. not abandon the core frame-work.

THE HEIDEN DEPARTMENT OF CARDIOLOGY

What can be done in eighteen years? If yoo ask that question to Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and Eva Heiden they might tell you that a great deal can be done in eighteen years --- for that is what they have done for the Cardiology Department of Bikur Cholim Hospital Jerusalem. Our story begins eighteen years ago when the cornerstone was laid for the new Cardiology Department at the hospital. At the ceremony the Heidens committed themselves to establishing a department, equipped and staffed to meet the highest standards of a cardiology department possible.

On the cenceiving of the department they sponsored the sophisticated equipment necessary for the catheterisation Unit. only to replace it mine years later with a newer and more modern model.

In early 1982 they surprised everyone once again by purchasing the most modern equipment to establish a new division for Nuclear medicine.

The Heidens are aware of the importance of the department as a teaching facility - indeed the staff of the department plays a major role in teaching cardiology to fourth and sixth year medical students. Therefore to commemorate their ten years of involvement with the department which was slowly but surely becoming their second home a Cardiovascular Symposium was held in Jerusalem drawing participants from Israel and abroad. The Heidens - after discussions with the physicians at the hospital - pioneered for the next breakthrough, the opening of the Thoracic Surgery Department - when their gift to this

Two of Mr. Heiden's brother, Geza and Tibor Hei-den, were slaughtered in the Holocaust. The last Heideo brother, the late Jeno Jhoshua, a Holocaust survivor, fulfilled his Zionistic desires. He lived io Israel and served as Vice President of Brai Herzel. One of the Heiden daughters, Dora as a youngster in Budapest founded and di-rected the "Chana Institute". Here, hot meals and clothes were provided for nears and cioines were provided for ocedy children. Dora married Rabbi Alexander Rosenberg of New York and their son is the esteemed Rabbi Jacob Rosenberg, founder and director of Yeshiva "Ohr Sameach" in Jerusalem. * BLOOD & WINE One of the most exquisitely mixed-up pictures of the last several years, the latest collaboration between director Bob (Five Easy Pieces) Rafelson and actor Jack Nicholson combines a rich, novelistic sense of character with the plot twists of a junky genre flick. Nicholson stars as a well-hecled scoundrel of a Miami wine dealer who hatches e plan to steal a diamond necklace with the help of an ex-con played by Michael Caine. The burglary, of course, does not go as planned, and things take a turn for the violent and eventually the deadly...this is all a foregone conclusion. What separates B&W. though, from the tens of dozens of other films about failed heists and their eftermath is that The Situation is typical, but the characters aren't types. Foreign Ministry confirms Gold, Davis appointments

By JAY BUSHINSKY

Three major diplomatic appointments - two political and one professional - were confirmed by the Foreign Ministry yesterday, ending the prolonged absence of an Israeli envoy 10 the UN, assigning a new ambassador to Russia, and filling the No. 2 slot at the Washington embassy.

Dore Gold, foreign policy advis-er to Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu, is now officially the new ambassador to the UN after being appointed last month.

Gold, 43, from West Hartford, Connecticut, immigrated in 1980. after completiog a PhD in Middle East studies at Columbia University. He worked at Tel Aviv University's Jaffee Ceoter for Strategic Studies and served as an adviser to the Israeli delegation to the Madrid conference in 1991.

The ambassador-designate to Russia, Herzl Inbar, is the ministry's deputy director-general for Laun American affairs. Previously ambassador to Venezuela, his

Billions in defense deals by year 2000

By STEVE RODAN

Israeli defense firms are oego-tiating $10.5 billion worth of contracts with foreign clients and expect more than half to be signed by the year 2000, accord-ing to the Defense Ministry. More than 60 percent of the contracts are being negotiated with clients in the Far East and Australia.

"In Asia, there are couotries concerned about their security." Defense Ministry director-general Ilan Biran said at a news conference yesterday in advance of next week's Paris Air Sbow. "These couotries have a range of relations with us that are relatively new."

Biran portrayed a robust image of Israel's defense industries. He said io 1996 Israel signed con-tracts that totalled $2b. So far this year, Israel has signed more than $1b. in contracts. The result, Biran said, is that by the year 2000 reveoues from Israeli defense exports will exceed $2b.

But Defeose Mioistry data forecast what could be an even rosier future. According to ministry statistics disclosed at the news conference, Israel is negotiating contracts around the world that total $10.5b. The most lucrative potential lies in the Far East and Australia, where Israel is negotiating more than $6.2b. in deals.

Rabin memorial day bill supported

By LIAT COLLINS

The bill calling for a national memorial day to commemorate Yitzhak Rabin passed first reading in the Knesset yesterday. It was supported by 31 MKs; Michael Kleiner (Gesher) abstained. Despite the relatively large turnout for the vote – nearly all of them oppositioo members - only a handful of MKs listened to the two-hour debate.

The bill was submitted by the Meretz faction and is expected to undergo several changes before being presented for second and final readings. It was referred to the Education Committee.

Under the bill, the Hebrew date of Rabin's assassination, 12 Heshvan, would be marked anoually in several ways, including the lowering of flags on public buildiogs to half mast: special activities in schools; and a special note of the day on IDF bases. A memorial service would be held oext to his grave on Mount Herzl.

said. "We are talking about the second stage where the negotiations begin in earnest." The second most active area currently is Western Europe, where Israeli firms are negoriating nearly $1.4b. in contracts. The potential, the ministry says, however, lies more in Eastern Europe, where officials expect to win $1.47b. in contracts by the year 2000. North America, the ministry says, is expected to garner close to $700 million in defense contracts within the next two to three years. Biran said he hopes the Israeli defense firms will cooperate abroad and embark on joint marketiog and manufacturing ventures. This, he said, would elimioate inefficiency and needless competition.

But the director-general rejected a proposal presented by Brig.-Gen. (res.) Aviem Sela, a former Air Force officer and now a defense consultant, for a sole marketing body that would coordinate and negotiate all export deals. The proposal was raised as part of efforts by defense contractors to improve efficiency in the wake of the mega-mergers by their counterparts in the US and Western Europe. "The defense industries must show maturity and cooperatioo." Biran said.

"I expect them to cooperate fully on upgrades without coooection to consolidation or structural changes."

> The education minister would be responsible for the implementation of the law and drawing up the relevant regulations.

> Meretz faction chairman Haim Oron, who presected the bill, stressed in his speech that the death of Rabin was different from that of other leaders; "because it was the murder of a prime minister who died in the line of duty."

> The assassination was an attempt to kill the entire. democratic regime, and therefore, beyond commemorating the man and the leader, we should determine - and this is agreed upon by all parts of the House that a memorial day for Rabin will be held to protect the spirit of democracy and defend it against those who rise up against it." Oron said.

> He complained that oo governmeot minister was present for the discussion on the bill, although . Industry and Trade Minister Natan Sharansky and Internal Security Minister Avigdor Kahalani turned up for the vote and supported the bill.

Weisenthal Center: Revoke Arafat's Nobel prize

By ELLI WOHLGELERNTER and news agencies

The Simon Wiesenthal Center is launching an international campaign calling on the Nobel Prize Committee to cancel the peace prize given in 1994 to Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat because of his tacit endorsement of the killing of Arab land dealers who sell to Jews. The dean of the center admits, however, that there is no precedent for revoking the prize.

"We understand there is no legal mechanism, and the rules and the charter doo't provide them with a mechanism to officially pull it back," Rabbi Marvin Hier said. "But still the question is, does the committee have an obligation to remain silent, or could the committee simply say, 'We've been watching the press reports, and we think that if this is true, it's certainly behavior unbecoming of a Nobel laureate.' Whether they take the prize back or not, just having them say that is sufficiently an embarrassment for him, should they have the guts to do it."

Hier said the purpose of his letter to Francis Sejerstedt, chairman of the Nobel Peace Prize Committee, was to prod some of the committee members to reach the conclusion that they should say something publicly, and "to embarrass Mr. Arafat beyond the Jewish community."

For Arafat to have a policy, "that supports a death sentence to anyone who sells land to a Jew, whether he's from Brooklyn, or from France, or from England, whether his name is Bernstein or Goldstein, is just something that a Nobel laureate should bave nothing to do with, and the fact that Arafat endorses it makes him a very questionable recipient," Hier said.

However, in an interview in the current issue of Newsweek magazine, which went on sale yesterday, Arafat said he is "absolutely against" vigilante executions of Palestinians who sell land to Israelis, and added that those responsible would be arrested if they were found. "We are absolutely against anyone taking the law into his own hands," Arafat was quoted as saying:

In the Newsweck interview, conducted on Friday, Arafat said, "The death penalty hasn't been carried out and never will be." He said the three Arabs were killed "by unknown persons" and denied that the head of one of his security services was involved in the manders.

Yisrael Ba'aliya: We'll vote as we like

By LIAT COLLINS

AT THE KNESSET

Yisrael Ba'aliya has informed ime Minister Binyamin Prime Netanyahu that its MKs do not feel bound by coalition discipline on votes because of what faction chairman Roman Bronfman called gross violations of coalition agreements made with the faction." Its MKs will now vote according to their own views rather than in line with coalition stands. Apparently, the last straw for the party was the government's refusal to appoint its preferred candidate, Zvi Magen, as ambas-

Bronfman also menuoned what he called the Finance Ministry's foot-dragging in implementing a program to help absorb new immigrant scientists.

He said the government had rejected nearly all the bills proposed by Yisrael Ba'aliya "and the situation has become unbearable." The faction is expected to meet with the prime minister to air its complaints.

No return to former electoral system Two bills calling for the abolition of the direct election of the prime minister and a return to the previous electoral system were rejected yesterday. The bills were filed by Naomi Chazan (Meretz) and Rehavam Ze'evi (Moledet). They were both raised for a preliminary reading. Chazan's bill was defeated 22-37 with one abstention and Ze'evi's 18-30 with two abstentions. The debate crossed party lines, with oot only Meretz and Moledet on the same side, but with three Likud MKs - Uzi Landau, Michael Kleiner, and David Re'em - voting in favor of the bills.

Torah Judaism, and the Third Way.

Bills would lower mandatory education age

Two bills, which passed preliminary reading despite the objections of the government for budgetary reasons, call for mandatory free education to begin at either three or four. Tamar Gozansky (Hadash) submitted the bill calling for it to start at three; Anat Maor (Meretz) suggested a year later.

Gozansky said that while some children of that age can use computers, others have not yet seen a book or been read a story. She said the bill is raised every year, but its implementation is postponed because of the cost.

Deputy Education Minister Moshe Peled said the ministry favors the bills, but does not have the needed funds and is carrying out "painful budget cuts and cannot take on any more costs."

Maor's bill was supported by 21 MKs, and opposed by five; Gozansky's by 20 with eight against.

Bill would speed up libel trials

A joint bill by Zvi Weinberg (Yisrael Ba'aliya) and Yona Yahav (Labor), which passed preliminary reading, calls for strict punishments and speedy sentencing in libel and slander cases. It passed 31-1, despite the objections of the Weinberg mentioned specifically newspaper headlines which note that someone suspected of guilty of a crime is a new immigrant. He said such reports stigmatize immigrants. Weinberg recently submitted a different bill which calls for beavy punishments for those who publish libelous material.

Bill would allow men week off for wife's pregnancy Under a bill which passed preliminary reading, a man would be allowed to be absent from work for up to seven days a year on the grounds of his partner's pregnancy or childbirth. The bill was submitted by David Re'em (Likud). The days would come out of the man's sick leave.
